

COVID-19 Company Statement

We at Union Technical Services Ltd. are working closely with our supply chain, customers and staff to ensure that we are responding effectively to the Covid-19 (coronavirus) outbreak in order to minimise the impact on our customers, staff, operations and service.

We consider the effective management of this situation essential to the delivery of our services, keeping customers and staff safe, as well as the long-term growth and survival of our business.

We have established our Health and Safety Manager and Operations Manager as the nominated Covid 19 Co-Ordinators for the communication of updates & monitoring of guidance and updates, personnel and workload.

Where possible we have identified where employees can work safely and effectively from home.

We have carried out Risk Assessments and established Safe Working Arrangements.

We have established reporting and management procedures covering:

- Contact with Covid 19 - No symptoms
- Symptoms but able to work from home
- Sick and unable to work

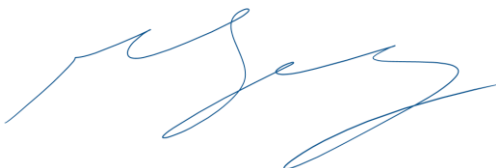

We have established briefings and communication channels to all of our workforce to ensure that they are provided with the latest Government and NHS guidance and advice.

We have provided hand hygiene equipment throughout all business processes and we are committed to providing sufficient resources and PPE to ensure that the Company can operate in line with Government Guidelines.

We have strong partnerships with our suppliers that may be used in the delivery of our product and services, we are communicating regularly in order to identify and mitigate any issues in their supply chain to us.

Our response to the Covid-19 (coronavirus) outbreak will be regularly reviewed to ensure that it remains relevant and effective to the changing needs of our business, customers and staff.
